

Identity Function – is a function in the form $f(x) = x$. More generally, an identity function is one which does not change the domain values at all.