

Symmetry about the X-axis – if for any point (x, y) on a graph, the point $(x, -y)$ is also on the graph, then the graph is said to be symmetric with respect to the X -axis. Also, if the equation of the curve is unaltered when y is replaced by $-y$. i.e. $f(x, y) = f(x, -y)$.