

Two-Color Counters – a disk-shaped manipulative that is generally white on one side and red on the other side. These counters are often used for introducing integer concepts. The white side represents a positive one value, and the red side represents a negative one value.