

Multiple of

a number is a multiple of a second number if that second number can be multiplied by an integer to get the original number.

Example: 10 is a multiple of 5 ($10 = 5 \times 2$);

however, 10 is not a multiple of 3.