

Distributive Property – says that

“If we multiply items on the same side of the equal sign of an equation in which parentheses are involved, then we have used the distributive property.”